Greatest among the reasons for it. such anticipations is the fact that owing to the favorable weather for logging operations in the entire section tributary to the same in other portions of the state certainly indicates that if there are any benprice of timber on account of the shortage of the log crop, Cheboygan will seand advance, for, owing to the unusually favorable weather, she will have been enabled to get in her full supply of logs, while other places will fall far short. While, therefore, they will reap the benefit of the advance on the proportionate amount got out, Cheboygan will receive the benefit on her entire usual season's operations; and as as lumber is the staple production of the place, whatever interest to its benefit must necessarily have to its benefit must necessarily have in the times of the Revolution of the history of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the throw of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the theory of paper in the same space can the threats, onever been a year in the titled contents of the magazine end with Charles Francis Adams Jr.'s valuable the past and the Railroads; but there are still more than a doze; but the same space can the theory of paper. ures to its benefit must necessarily have its influence on all branches of busi-

THE WEEK OF POST, while calling from all sources of information, is careful to remember that its columns are for the young as well as the old, and that the morals as well as the mind are part of a new-paper education. While hooling to promote the general good through this medium, it will accupatiously guard against doing individual health. The Literary Character of THE POST is higher in tone and broader in scope than that of any other Detroit paper. Its new department is ed-Cream Tartar, &c. sted with reference to furnishing the most accurate information on the most subjects. The twenate information on the most subjects. The twenty-five to forty common of telegraphic dispatches received dach week by THE DAILY Post are carefully condensed and summarized especially tor the Weekly pot thus the news from all parise of the world is given with each issue. In addition, it employs a large corps of local correspondents in the State, whose especial duty it is to give more in detail an account of domestic events. The proceedings of State organizations, the Levislative, religious educational, and other too thodies are all carefully reported.

The Market Reports given in the various editions of THE Post are by all odies more full and rehable then those of any of its Detroit contemporaries, each separate usue being carefully revised and corrected.

A SPECIAL DEPARTMENT, devoted to Agriculture, Horticulture, and Household affairs, has been added to THE Post during the past year, and placed under the charge of a thoroughly competent special editor. This feature has attracted much attention throughout the State already, and has everywhere received high recommunes.

In every way, THE POST for the year 1876 will THE BEST PAPER FOR MICHIGAN READERS onblished in this state; and this reputation it CIRCULATE YOUR COUNTY PAPERS.

We carnestly advise the nepublicans of Michigan to promote, in every possible way, the circulation of their local and county papers. The local press of Michigan is in the main well worthy of generous support. For ability, candor, and careful editing, it is not excelled by the local press of any other State, Michigan has good reason to be proud of its local press. The more the local papers of the State are circulated and read, in their several localities, the greater will be the demand for a large city and state journal, like The Post, because the local tice. journals creat: a public taste for reading, and a deare to get all the news, and to secure the amplest and ablest discussions of great public issues. Our interests are one with those of the local journals of the State, and our presperity will not fall to be promoted by theirs. We press the claims of PHE POST upon public retention, not as a rival to detrect from the circulation of the local journals of the State, but as supplementary to them, in a large field, and for such readers as deare to take a large city paper.

Furthermore, the results of the fall elections, this year, occurring in important States, where the issues have been ilinancial and administrative reform, foreshadow.
